

BLOG 37

Once again time has flown by & now we are about to have our first 'live' easy-art session next week, so I need to find a subject, & print it out for everyone to copy if they wish, or of course they can bring their own subjects. However, it is interesting to see how everyone handles the same subject- always different & good to compare at the end, with amiable comments on whether that was the right shade for the sky, countryside, sea etc etc.

It will also be interesting to work out if we stay with the same venue which is very convenient for most, or take up the odd offer from others along the way- all to be decided in due course.
